THC is Poisonous for your PUP and CAT

The Hidden Danger in Edibles
Co-intoxication can occur from: chocolate, raisins, xylitol, or high-fat substances

Treatment
- Supportive care like regulating the animal’s temperature
- Give fluids to prevent dehydration
- Anti-vomiting meds to stop fluid loss
- Activated charcoal to bind the toxin in the stomach
- Pump the stomach to remove the marijuana from the dog’s system

Symptoms
- Dilated pupils and/or Glassy eyes
- Difficulty walking
- Dribbling urine
- Nervousness
- Tremors or Seizures
- Coma
- Difficulty regulating body temp
- Slow heart rate

Prevention is Best!
- Keep all marijuana, including edibles, inside a cabinet or the refrigerator away from prying paws
- When you are smoking, put your pets in a well-ventilated room away from potential inhalation
- Dispose of marijuana cigarette butts in a secure container that pets cannot access
- Advise guests that you have an animal in the house and marijuana must be kept out of reach

ASPCA Poison Control:
(888) 426-4435
Veterinary Emergency & Critical Care
8650 W Tropicana Ave #104 · (702) 262-7070

Cultivate